DALY'S COMEDY A MERRY BILL

Spirited Rendition by the Neills
Keeps House in Laughter
Last Night.

The Neills gained a fresh hold upon the fancy of the Honolulu public last evening with a spirited presentation of Daly's comedy the "Lottery of Love." Like all the Daly comedies adapted and written for that clever caste of players, the piece is breezy and easily brings laughter. With the others, the plot is a maze of complications and misunderstandings, arising in a comparatively natural manner from an improbable state of affairs, supposed to be taken for granted before the play commences. The situations depend greatly upon the versatility of the players to make them successful, although humorous enough in themselves. The dialogue, sometimes borrowed, is always witty like the bubbles in a glass of champagne, a simile indeed that fits the play. There is no deep thought, only merry laughter.

As with all the Daly series the comedy is well balanced, the first act leads up to a better one, and the third sustains them both.

The players had the audience convulsed in the second act, the honors falling to Lillian Andrews, Mr. Neill and John Burton. Neill himself was naturally and artistically humorous in an easily exaggerated role. Burton was excellent as the eccentric Buttercorn. He was thoroughly humorous, without appearing studied. MacVicar, as ever, presented a consistent character study of the old salt.

With the short cast, several members of the company had a holiday, Miss Brownell having an opportunity that she appreciated and handled very daintily. Miss Chapman had but a small role, which her laugh alone rendered enjoyable, while her daintily rendered epilogue was perhaps the most artistic speech of the play. Mr. Morris was good; Miss Forbes was good; so were the remaining three.

There is another Daly play on the repertoire, "Nancy & Co.," and tonight's performance will probably mean another disappearance of the orchestra to make room for seats on that occasion. ALLAN DUNN.

WANTED TO BUY ONE.

A woman who came in with her husband from a suburban village to see the circus became suddenly ill and fainted. A cab was called, and the husband placing his wife in the cab, they were driven hurriedly to the office of a physician. The physician felt of the wife's pulse, tested her heart action, and then placing a febrile thermometer in her mouth, he bade her close her mouth and keep it shut, she having recovered her senses. The wife did as she was bidden and the doctor looked steadily at his watch, his finger again on her pulse and counted. The seconds ran into a minute, two minutes—three! And then the husband asked eagerly and anxiously:

"Say, doc, what'll yer take fer that thing?" pointing to the thermometer.
"Why," demanded the physician.
"Cause hit's the first time I ever knowed 'er to hol' 'er tongue that long."

VISIBLE ASSET.

"You people down here spent $50,000 boring a hole in the ground for coal, didn't you?" asked the passenger who was walking up and down the platform to stretch his legs while the engine was taking in a feed of coal and water.

"Yes, sir," replied the hump-shouldered native sitting on a nail keg.
"That's about the size of it."
"And what have you got to show for it?"

"Well, mister," said the native, taking a fresh chew of Missouri plug, "we've still got the hole."
A NEW HOTEL LUXURY.
Hotels become more palatial day by day both in outward appearance and interior equipment. A Chicago hotel now purports to exceed the height of luxury heretofore reached by its neighbors. Not content with the ordinary bathrooms, the management is about to add a new feature in the shape of an atrium, corresponding to the inner courts of the old Roman palaces, with a pool of water in the center, lounging rooms adjoining, and every facility for luxurious idleness which the Chicagoan of the future may find time for.

UNCOVERED COAL IS COSTLY.

If a load of coal is left out of doors exposed to the weather, say for a month, it loses one-third of its heating qualities. If a ton of coal is placed on the ground, left there, and another ton is placed under a shed, the latter loses about 25 per cent of its heating force, the former about 47 per cent. Hence it is a great saving of coal to have it in a dry place, covered over on all sides. The softer the coal, the more heating power it loses, because the volatile and valuable constituents undergo a slow combustion.

RATHER MIXED.

Mme. Patti was born in Madrid, her father was a native of Catania in Sicily, and her mother a native of Rome. She was brought up by an American stepfather in the United States, married two French husbands, before she settled down in Wales, and is now the wife of a Swedish nobleman. To prevent any difficulty in consequence of this complex state of affairs in connection with her property she has taken out letters of naturalization as a British subject.

BEGAN AS A POTHOOK EXPERT.

Samuel R. Callaway, president of the American Locomotive Company, was more than thirty years ago at the head of the shorthand writers of this continent. He kept up his practice and today could take a trick at an important assignment with the best of stenographers. He won his spurs at this clerical work in the office of the Grand Trunk Railway of Canada, and his skill at pothooks and hangers had much to do with his subsequent advancement.

REVERSED SITUATIONS.

"Yes, poor fellow, she married him to reform him."
"Well?"
"And now he's got his hands full trying to reform her."
